

Helen Gale

Helen Gale is YBI's Research and Policy Manager. She joined the YBI team full-time in June 2010, having volunteered one-day-a-week over the previous year. Helen's role is to help make YBI a more research-led organisation, focused on developing the evidence base from the collective global expertise of our network members. Prior to joining YBI, Helen held research and policy positions across politics, business and civil society, including leading microfinance projects in East Africa and South East Asia. Roles included policy adviser at the European Parliament and to the current UK government, including on international development issues. She holds a first class honours from Oxford University and a Masters from King's College London and Institut d'Etudes Politiques (Sciences Po), Paris.

Anne Marie Golla

Golla has more than 15 years of experience in monitoring and evaluation and in research of women and work, food security, and poverty. Prior to joining ICRW in 2007, Golla conducted research on food security issues in the United States for the Economic Research Service of the United States Department of Agriculture. Earlier, she oversaw the design and monitoring of economic and rural development projects for CARE International. Golla has worked on projects in Latin America, Southeast Asia, Africa and Eastern Europe, and has extensive experience in Russia, Central Asia and the Transcaucasus region. Golla has held teaching positions at Georgetown University and the University of Maryland at College Park.

Kevin Hempel

Kevin Hempel works in the Social Protection and Labor unit of the World Bank. Prior to joining the World Bank in 2009, Kevin worked for the Inter-American Development Bank in Mexico, the GIZ in Bolivia, the UN Economic Commission for Latin America in Chile, as well as in banking and management consulting in Europe. His current work focuses on youth employment and entrepreneurship, youth violence, and Monitoring & Evaluation of youth-focused interventions. Kevin holds a Bachelor degree in International Business from the European School of Business Reutlingen (Germany) and Reims Management School (France), and a M.A. in International Relations from the School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) at Johns Hopkins University.

Mattias Lundberg

Mr. Mattias Lundberg is the Senior Economist in the Human Development Network of the World Bank. He was one of the principal authors of the World Development Report for 2007, Development and the Next Generation. Prior to his current position, he was a research economist in the Development Research Group at the World Bank. His research includes the impact of HIV/AIDS and other shocks and households, the delivery of primary health care and the provision of public services to the poor, impact evaluation and the measurement of efficiency in public services, and the relationship among trade, economic growth and income distribution. He has previously worked for the International Food Policy Research Institute (IFPRI), the Asian Development Bank, and private consulting companies.