

Leah Katerberg

Ms. Leah Katerberg is MEDA's Program Manager for Monitoring and Evaluation, providing management and technical assistance for the implementation of MEDA's data collection, analysis and reporting tools and processes. She has worked on projects in over a dozen countries in sub-Saharan and Northern Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, Central and South America, and Mexico. Her education includes a Bachelors in Economics and a Masters in Planning and Development from the University of Guelph. Prior to joining MEDA, Ms. Katerberg worked for Feed the Children in International Project Management and as an Independent Business Consultant for non-profit organizations. She has published on topics ranging from M&E, culture and development, and social policy in numerous journals and other literary works.

Eva Roca

Ms. Eva Roca, Staff Associate in the Poverty, Gender and Youth team at the Population Council, has been studying the linkages between social and economic vulnerability and health outcomes for the last 10 years. For much of that time her work has focused on adolescence and social exclusion. Ms. Roca has worked on health research projects in Asia, Latin America, and sub-Saharan Africa, and has a particular interest in participatory and structural approaches to addressing vulnerability. Ms. Roca has an MHS in International Health from Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health.